NATURAL VENEER

LEAD THE WAY TOWARDS INNOVATIVE AND CREATIVE DECOR SOLUTIONS WITH THE HELP OF THESE MASTERPIECES.

TYPES OF FIGURES

NATURAL VENEER

STRIPE GRAIN

A pattern of contrasting colour stripes veining in the grain direction. This figure is one of the most prevalent in veneers and is obtained through quarter cutting.

HALF-CATHEDRAL

This has half of the 'V' or 'U' grain formations, which are similar to the Cathedral structure.

MOTTLED

Sharp edges provide iridescent angular rays that shine. Mottled surfaces appear bold and gleaming. This uncommon figure is frequently associated with exclusivity.

BURLS

Due to warping and breaking burls that develop in outgrowths, this rare wood develops its unorganized grains. They produce a variety of grain patterns that are both distinct and random.

CLUSTER

The marvel of clusters is formed when partially burred logs undergo rotational slicing. Clusters are a collection of burl-like formations of various sizes.

CATHEDRAL

Crown cutting with an arching shape produces elegant 'V' or 'U' shaped grains. This is one of the most desired figures in veneers.

FIDDLE BACK

The figure gets its name from the wood grains seen on the backs of stringed instruments such as fiddles and guitars. The veneer is more valuable if the streaks running across it are more regular.

POMMELE

Pommele is a French word that means 'dappled'. Because of their irregular and thick grain patterns, they produce three-dimensional effects. Sapele, Dauka, and Bubinga are among the woodlands where these can be found.

CROTCH

A crotch is a grain pattern generated at the juncture of a branch and the main section. The grain curls beautifully in the cross-section of this area.

BIRD'S EYE

These scattered eye shaped marks on the surface of woods like maple are called Bird's Eye figure.

TYPES OF VENEER CUT

Veneer Cuts are where the natural beauty of wood is further enhanced with the use of technology. This is where a touch of creativity is added to nature's creations. Veneer Cuts give the wood patterns their distinctive and beloved designs. There are quite a few types of cuts, as different woods when cut or sliced at varied angles produce mesmerizing, unique designs.

CROWN CUT

The process of slicing the timber parallel to its growth rings is called a Crown Cut. This method produces irregular grain shapes on the veneer. This cut also helps the timber to retain its mother structure.

QUARTER CUT

The process of slicing the veneer perpendicular to the growth rings of the tree is called a Quarter Cut. This method produces a straight grain or ribbon stripped appearance. Woods like Walnut, Oak, Mahogany and Teak are cut using this method.

ROTARY CUT

The Rotary Cut uses a stationary knife to make cuts on a rotating log of wood, while following the annual growth ring patterns. This technique results in a wide, bold grain pattern. Rotary Cut is extensively used in Birch, Maple and Oak woods.

RIFT CUT

One of the most expensive cuts, the Rift Cut uses a quarter-log on the stay log making a half-cathedral pattern. The resulting veneer has a stripped grain and it is most commonly used to cut American woods.

A photograph of a dining area. In the center is a round, white-topped table with a dark wood base. Four modern, upholstered chairs with metal legs are arranged around the table. On the table, there is a vase of white lilies, two bottles of beer, and some greenery. The background is a wall with vertical wood paneling. The lighting is warm and soft.
